LOG ENTRY

Female fans of Star Trek, rejoice! After nearly 3 decades of Kirk, Picard, & Sisko, the creators of Star Trek are really going where they have never gone before. Captain Janeway has a difficult, yet fascinating journey ahead of her. She and her crew, along with the crew of a rebel Maquis ship, are flung to the far reaches of the galaxy, some 70 years away from Federation space. She rallies her crew to find a quicker way to get home. Along the way she plans to take advantage of their unique situation and make it a voyage of scientific discovery. We can count on their being adventure, danger, excitement as well as aliens, some friendly, some not.

From the beginning Voyager has been much talked about by the fans as well as the media. After Genevieve Boujold quit, after only a couple of days on the set, the rumor mill went into full tilt. Everyone was telling us about this one or that one was going to get the part. I never knew from one day to the next who was getting it. I'm glad that Kate Mulgrew got the part because I have liked her work in other things she has done and I think she'll do a good job in this part.

The Records Department worked on this newsletter and I as editor want to thank them for all the hard work they have done to get it out to you. I also want to thank the others who submitted articles to this issue of the Communique.

SHIPS OF THE GALAXY

"STAR TWEK-THE SEARCH FOR SPOOF" KELLY ACTIVITY FOR DECEMBER

For the closeness to Christmas, there were 40 Kelly members at the play! That's pretty good, I think. Members of the Alioth were there as well and we all had a really fun time. Two members of the Kelly were asked to help out on stage, which was a trip. The play was really funny and cast and crew all had a lot of fun. If you missed this by all means go to it while it is still here. You'll have a good time, I guarentee it.

50-321560

Then after the play we had our regular activity meeting where we had:
ANNOUNCEMENTS:

January activity; Jan. 14th. at 12 noon. Flat Iron Mesa Park.
Tubing Party, call your CO for more info.

Voyager premiere: Jan. 16th. Contact your department chief for more information/if you want to volunteer your place for a gathering.

NEW ORDERS: Crystal Smith; Tactical Department

CONGRATULATIONS TO YOU ALL!

ASK NUMBER ONE

There have been a lot of questions about the new Voyager series and I believe that this issue of the Communique will do a lot to answer those questions. Captain Janeway has quite a trip cut out for her. Of course she isn't on this journey alone, accompanying her on her quest is a diverse group: a Native American first officer, a Vulcan tactical/security officer, a holographic physican, a lieutenant who is a convicted criminal and an Asian-American ops/communications officer: a half-Klingon engineer and a couple of alien hitchhikers. Kate Mulgrew's impressions of Janeway are that she's an extraordinary woman and that it's very appropriate that 400 years from now, women will have transcended all of these stereotypes that so limit us today or certainly have in the past. Cptn. Janeway can be warm and completely authoritative, compassionate and also commanding, she's funny and powerful while maintaining great respect among her crew. Her key quality is fierce loyalty. She is first and formost the captain and she'll go down fighting for every member of her crew and for all her beliefs. She always makes the choice for science and for life, which ennobles her, and I think sets her a little bit apart. But she is by no means inaccessible, which is the beauty of who she is.

GENERATIONS

Bend the brand-new Enterprise, the Federation's pride;
Old Kirk, no longer in command, shows up for one last ride;
When suddenly, in outer space, the mighty ship starts shaking;
It's Red Alert, which tells us that a plot is in the making.

"There's quantum interference causing warp-out!" Scotty yells,
"A force glitch from a cosmic flux distorting our nacelles!"
He worries when a great explosion blows the lower deck off
That this could be the final film for him as well as Checkov.

With Kirk somewhere in Neverland, across the years we zip;
What's this? Picard's the captain of an old-time sailing ship;
This costly scene does nothing for the story line, but, shucks,
With mobs of paying Trekkies, what's an extra million bucks?

See Data, packed with circuitry and steady as a rock,
Who serves a vital function as a poor excuse for Spock;
Now, thanks to his "emotion chip," his banter will regale ya;
(He's hoping come next sequel he's equipped with genitalia.)

Soran, a half-crazed scientist, shows up to start a war;
But this can't be! He first appeared some eighty years before!
Picard is filled with sadness; he's depressed and feeling hollow;
How can he do his duty when the plot he cannot follow?

A Klingon ship's attacking, and the spit has hit the fan;
Two sisters lead the onslaught, each more fearsome than Roseanne;
They lash out with fury, seeking utter domination—
Or what we've come to know on Earth as Women's Liberation.

Soran escapes the Enterprise; he'd pay most any price
To get back to the Nexus, where there's total paradise—
A place of sheer contentment where all troubles are behind you,
Where baseball's still a pastime and the IRS can't find you;
A land where telemarketers can't reach you on the phone,
Where O.J.'s something that you drink and zites are unknown;
A world that's free of Flintstones and bad rappers you can't bear,
Where no one's name is Tito, and Geraldo's off the air.

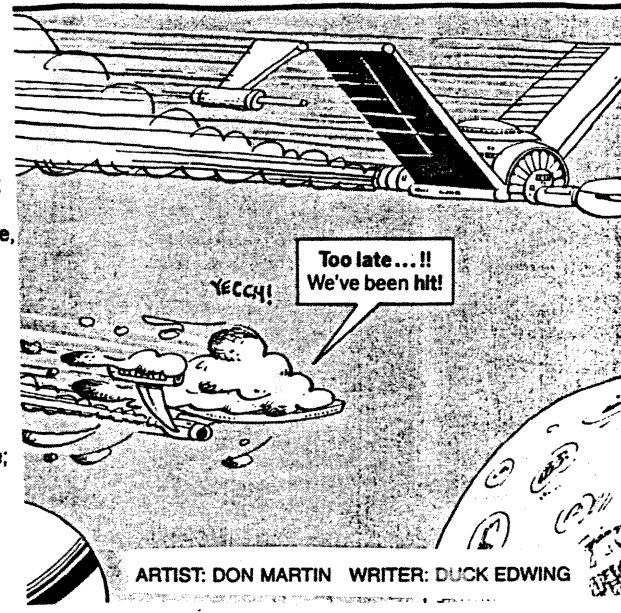

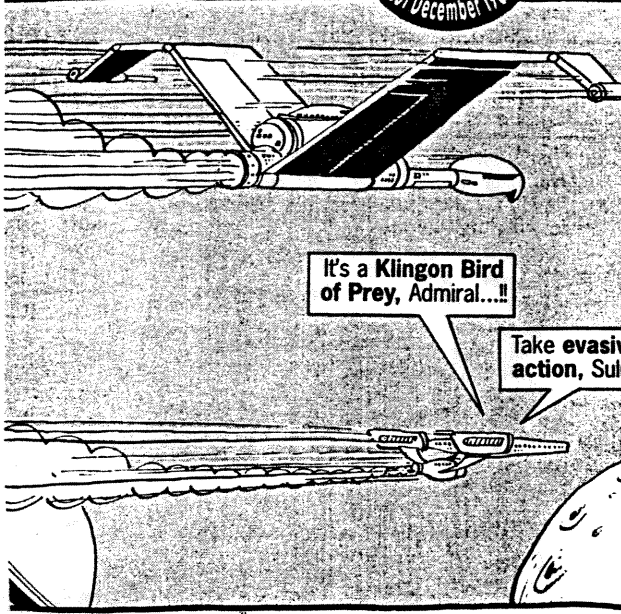

Picard gets to the Nexus, where his fondest dreams come true;
Amazingly, he has a wife and several children, too;
Though filled with joy to see the splendid family he's getting,
One kid resembles Riker, which he finds a bit upsetting.

What's this? Picard meets up with Kirk, who's also on the Nexus;
We know this can't be possible, but why should that perplex us?
When Spock once died, then came to life, it clearly made no sense,
Except in STAR TREK, where such feats are natural events.

Kirk's shot up bad, and now we fear his great career is done,
(Oh, they changed that!, oh well)
Unless, somehow, he's gotten through to Rescue 911;
The torch is passed—Picard survives to fight another day,
Although he kind of wished Kirk had loaned him his toupee.

Who knows what future STAR TREK flicks await us down the line;
Will Worf and Sulu join up with the crew of Deep Space Nine?
Will Odo wed Uhura? Will the Tribbles rise again?
Don't sweat it—we'll find out in sequels VIII and IX and X!

IT'S OVER . . . AGAIN

by: Lt. Harvey

Great, it's opening weekend for the biggest movie of the year, and I have to go play Army. Swell. Most of the Kelly is going to our sponsored theater on Friday or Saturday night, and I'm stuck on Ft. Douglas with a bunch of nerds dressed in green (Hey, I'm one of those nerds!). After talking to some friends of mine, we decide to go to the late show on Saturday night, since it's the only way I'll be seeing the movie that weekend.

After a hectic day and missed connections, I'm off to the Flick theater at 9:10 pm hoping to make it to the 9:30 show. I get there just after 9:30, in time to see my friend (who'd bought the tickets that morning at 11:30) waving her arms in exasperation. She'd almost given up on me. We go in to the over crowded theater, and can't find where our seats are being saved by her boyfriend. Finally-there he is-and we take our seats just as the lights dim.

I watched intently as a bottle floated across the screen. I make a comment about how it's probably Dom Perignon. The three of us chuckle and drop it. Then, the label - it IS a bottle of Dom Perignon! The three of us are laughing hysterically, with the rest of the crowd puzzled at our secret fancy.

The movie went on to give us fantastic acting, incredible story development, and out-of-this-world FX. I found myself glued to my seat, drink in hand, watching a miracle in my time: the two most famous Captains meet and work together to save the universe. But...

I found that, once again, it's Kirk saving the star system in question, not Picard. The "passing of the torch" was little more than a glorified 2-hour episode on the big screen. Bigger budget, better guest stars, and way better FX. I honestly expected the final scene to be a blank screen with GOOD BYE printed across it.

Not that I didn't like the movie. I did. I've seen it several times now, and each time it is more enjoyable. The crash scene is one of the most spectacular things I have seen with science fiction (or anything else, for that matter) in my day. The realistic way Cmdr. Data deals with his onslaught of emotion was the comic relief of the weekend. The evacuation was superbly executed, and the filming of it made me want to participate. The way the crew interacts with each other and at each dreadful situation was beautifully designed.

But there were still some things I didn't agree with. First of all, if Scotty knew Kirk was dead, and how he died, why did he claim that the Captain was alive in "Relics"? Second, in "Firstborn" the knife left at the scene of the attack had three inscriptions on it: Lursa, B'Tor, and Lursa's son. If Lursa and B'Tor died in Generations, how could she have borne a son and raised that son with the dignity of the Duras family? Okay, Geordi has saved the USS Enterprise three or four times a season from a core breach, why couldn't he save it this time? Yeah, yeah, a coolant leak, and something wrong with a do-hickey thing-a-ma-bobber, but he could have done something. And even if time has no meaning in the Nexus, memories would still be valid. Why, if Kirk was in the Nexus for 78 years prior to Picard, it was as if he'd just arrived?

These questions may go unanswered for a very long time, but I plan on asking the writers when they come to Utah for the next writers workshop in January.

Let me reiterate: I liked the show very much. It was an incredible work of talent and art. But it was just that: a show. I hope that when the crew of the Enterprise E comes along, they won't feel the need to stand in the shadow of any other crew, cast, or expectations. It's time for them to stand on their own. Like they have been doing for five years now.

Assiatant Chief of Records

Born at Mac Dill AF Base in Florida on Friday the 13th. (August) Flew to California when only 18 mos. old, and lived there until 1982. Grew up in Orange County and moved to San Luis Obispo County when 19 Yrs. Has been an avid ST book reader and am currently going to the U of U. as a senior in Business School (Accounting). Work for the County as a Pre-Trial Service person. Love the Arts and Victorian Architecture.

Was held by Elvis once when 6 months old. Adored ST since '66. Belonged to a fan club in school. Wrote petitions for the dream to live on--The Campaign that hopefully created the Movies/Next Generation. Favorite movie is Voyage Home, favorite characters are Guinan, Deanna Troi.

MARK MAHONEY

Records

Born in San Louis Obispo, 1981. Moved to Salt Lake City when 2 years old and lived here ever since. Go to Clayton Middle school in the 7th. grade. I have 5 brothers, 2 sisters, a pet snake named Rocky, a cat named Maggie, and a dog named Nugget. I collect comics, cards, learn jokes, and do funny voices, also draw and am talented in art. I am in the choir, earned the Arrow of Light in Scouts, have a green belt in Wado Ru Karate, and was hit by a car 2 years ago, remained in a coma for a week

The Undiscovered Country is my favorite episode, Spock and Q are my favorite characters, and I like the toys, comics and books of the Star Trek world.

TINA L. WEIDAUER

Conn

Born in SLC on April 14, 1966. Grew up here, I have an average family excpt for my brother who is a genius, hahaha. I do clerical work for Johnson Controls. I enjoy reading, playing games, Karaoke, and anything dealing with Star Trek.. Talents? (SIGH). Unique? Yeah, I guess I'm unique. (GRIN) Now, as for my character, she is a distant cousin of the late Tasha Yar. My name (character) is Vanessa Yar. I (my character) was born and grew up on a failed federation colony on Ceta Alpha V. Vanessa Yar is 27 and didn't know her cousin Tasha, she heard stories about her through the Federation and is familiar with her traits. As Vanessa I am strong and independent, very much like Tasha. Maybe a little bit more reserved and not quite so strong.

I used to watch the original series once in a while. I didn't REALLY get involved until next gen. The movies are o.k., I think the even numbered ones are better than the odd numbered ones. My favorite episode is Pen Pals. I like most episodes dealing with Data & Tasha. Skin of Evil is my LEAST favorite. (I wonder why?) The least thing I like about star trek is that it unfortunately, for most people, has become the only SF that they believe in. Not me though.

JED SMITH

Assistant Chief of Tactical

I was born in Magna, Utah and lived there to the age of 17. I moved to Midvale and Married my wife Charlene. We moved to West Jordan where we now reside with our daughter Crystal. We have owned our home for 10 years. My family is very important to me and I will take care of them first, then I will PLAY. Star Trek is one of my most favorite things and I would rather do things involving S. T. over almost everything else.

I've been a trekky for over 20 yrs. I was a member of a S. T club back in 1982. Since then I didn't know that a Club existed in Utah. Then I went to a S. T. con. at the Red Lion where I met the Kelly. If I had known you existed before then I would have joined before. The episodes I enjoy most are: The Trouble With Tribbles, The Doomsday Machine, and Heart of Glory.

I want to be a Klingon. I like Klingons because of their attitude about Honor. They live their life for the moment and for glory. My character's name is Krag.

CHARLENE SMITH

Tactical

I was born in SLC and have lived in this valley all my life. I have one brother, am a housewife. We have 2 parakeets, a dog named Goldie, 2 cats, 1 fish the other one got eaten. I graduated from Hillcrest High School in '75. My main interests were Home Ec. and Choir. I am a good cook.

Jed got me interested in Star Trek. My favorite episode is Skin of Evil, my favorite movie is ST-IV. I've been interested in ST since Jed got me involved. The thing I like most about Star Trek is associating with others and bringing the whole family to the activities. I can't think of anything I like least.

My Star Trek character is Bajoran and she is like I am.

CRYSTAL SMITH

Tactical

I was born at Cottonwood Hospital. Have lived in West Jordan all my life. I am in the fourth grade at Jim Bridger Elementary School. My hobbies include; singing, cloggind, collecting Barbi dolls, rocks, pine cones. What is special about me? Mom says I'm a wonderful daughter and very beautiful.(Ruth says)

I got interested cuz of Mom and Dad. I've been a fan all my life. The thing I like most about Star Trek is the wonderful uniforms. And I want one soon. (hint, hint, Ruth?) I want to be Jean-Luc Picard. He is my idol.

SOME OTHER THINGS THAT NEVER HAPPEN ON STAR TREK...

- >>A redshirt sneaks down a deserted corridor, turns a corner and suddenly has a surprise birthday party.
- >>A redshirt manages to avoid the thrown knife, phaser shot, arrow, or whatever.
- >>McCoy says, "On second thought, maybe I'm a carpenter and NOT a doctor after all."
- >>The deflector shields hold through the duration of the battle.
- >>Kirk meets a woman whom he's known for years but never had sex with.
- >>Sulu and Chekov get to do something interesting.
- >>Kirk says, "Uhura, I'm frightened."
- >>Kirk gets Court-martialed for violating the Prime Directive.
- >>A Klingon says to a companion, "Hey I like you."
- >>Harry Mudd manages to turn a healthy profit selling something legal.
- >>An android race turns out to be completely friendly and not threatening or manacing in any way.
- >>Some patient of McCoy's who's NOT a central chatacter LIVES!
- >>Riker manages to avoid seeming like a William Shatner clone.
- >>The crew of the original Enterprise disperse, Sulu gets his own ship, and nobody suffers major emotional trauma.
- >>A major character dies and isn't resurrected.
- >>McCoy says, "He'll live, Jim!"
- >>Artificial intelligence and android technology make human exploration of the galaxy obsolete.
- >>Somebody says, "You know, the Enterprise-D looks really stupid! What is it a 'Close Encounters' reject???"
- >>The mysterious giant threatening object is on a direct course for some world other than Earth.

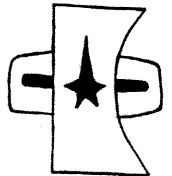

I know it is hard to believe that once we needed to learn the name Jean-Luc Picard. We needed to learn that Gates McFadden was the actor to play Dr. Bev. Crusher, that Data was the name of an android and that Rroi was a Betazoid. As we look forward to a new series here is a game to help you learn the new characters, actors, their positions and race before the series begins.

GENERATIONS (my favorite parts)
by Mark Mahoney

My favorite part of the movie is when Data laughed over something stupid and he said, "Hi I'm Mr. Tricorder." Data was my favorite part of the whole movie. Some people didn't like how Data was so silly, but when he pushed the Dr. off of the ship it was funny. I thought I would die laughing.

I really liked the stellar topography room in the movie. It was cool that they could find Dr. Soren with the star charts and the computer. They should have showed this part in the commercials

I didn't like it when Captain Kirk died (the second time) it seemed uncalled for, but I'm glad that they stopped Dr. Soren. I saw a "Kirk" figure at Toys R' Us that was in a space suit. I heard that part was cut from the movie, maybe we'll see that part when it goes into video stores.

Many years ago our county was caught up in a fairytale type of competition where one lucky young woman would be named as "Scarlett O'Hara" in David O. Selznick's new film, "Gone With the Wind." This was named as the part of the decade, and everyone wanted to chance to audition.

That was then, and this is now, and the part of the decade now is that of Captain Kate Janeway, of the new Voyager series. Rumors have flown, auditions have become a cattle call, and every female short of the Olsen twins have tried for this hyped-up role.

Rumors have covered nearly every alternate universe conceivable. The stories have ranged from: Paramount wanting a male in the lead and dragging out the selection to create delays in shooting, to rumors of Rick Berman being replaced, to Bujold being fired for a tantrum.

Despite wild stories and press leaks, Paramount never considered that they were behind. Also Berman interviewed and auditioned many actresses to assure himself of making the best selection. This apparently paid off well for him, for when Bujold walked off after only two days, he immediately called in Kate Mulgrew who had previously auditioned... twice.

It has been said that Bujold quit after two days probably due to the overwhelming demand of the job. This would seem to be an accurate version of the story as she is accustomed to the relatively slower pace set by movie production. Although no official statement has been made, and the executives aren't speaking. It is anyone's best guess as to what really happened.

Kate Mulgrew seems to be the delightful type of character that we tend to need as Captain. She is all spunk, ambition, and has a strong voice with a charming accent.

I'm glad they picked Kate! Lindsay Wagner would have seemed like a K-Mart version of Data, Kate Jackson will always be one of Charlies' Angels, and Joanna Cassidy has been over-used as a TV mom. Of all the women that I read were considered, only Kate seemed to have that feminine, yet nice half-way version of Kirk and Jean-Luc. She'll be swell... She'll be great... (I love that song)

STAR TREK : VOYAGER

Glossary of terms

Show description;

In the two hour premiere, the adventure begins when the starship USS VOYAGER is dispatched in search of a Maquis ship which has disappeared in an unusual region of space known as the "Badlands." The starship finds the Maquis ship but not before being swept up in a strange and terrifying phenomenon which sends them into the far reaches of the galaxy -- so far away that, even at warp speeds, it would take nearly seventy years to return. The two diverse crews band together to explore this distant part of space and to find a way home.

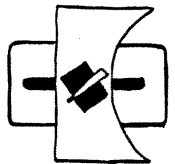

50-321560

Starship U.S.S. Voyager;

An Intrepid-class vessel capable of holding 200 crew members, the Starship is one of the fastest and most powerful starship in starfleet. Although it is smaller in size than the Enterprise, the Voyager is more technologically advanced than previous vessels, and can operate independently for approximately three years without refueling. Superbly equipped for exploration and research, the Voyager has an equally impressive array of both defensive and offensive weapons, making it ready for action.

Maquis;

A militant group formed when a new treaty dividing territory between the Federation and Cardassians left several Federation colonies caught along the border in the newly established Demilitarized Zone. Rather than move their entire community into Federation territory, many colonists chose to stay and reside within the jurisdiction of the Cardasian Empire, without the protection of Starfleet. Thus, the inception of the Maquis -- a group of resistance fighters considered outlaws by both the Federation and Cardassia. Some called them heroes, others accuse them of adding to the mounting tension in the region.

The Ocampa;

This alien species mysteriously protected by the Array, has a life span of only nine years. Several hundred thousand Ocampa reside miles underground a hot desert planet, where they have lived for over a thousand years. Their below the surface habitat originated when the mysterious global warming began, and their planet turned into a desert. It was at this time that the Caretaker ordered the Ocampa to leave the surface to find refuge and an abundance of water underground -- with strict instructions never to return to the surface again.

LCARS

The Kazon;

The crew members of Voyagers first encounter this sinister new race on the surface of the planet-turned-desert. They are the warriors who have made several attempts to invade the tunnels leading down to the Ocampa, in search for water. Never successful, the kazon have grown angry as they wait for a time when the Caretaker can no longer protect the Ocampa.

ARRAY;

Called the "Caretaker" by the Ocampa, the array is a mysteriously active piece of space hardware that pulls the starship Voyager to the edge of the galaxy. It orbits the solar system while sending out a variety of energy and energy pulses at measured intervals

▼ Kate Mulgrew: Spacey

ROBIE ROBINSON

CAPTAIN'S COURAGEOUS

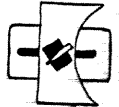

When Genevieve Bujold jumped ship after a couple of days shooting Star Trek: Voyager, the TV series due in January, Kate Mulgrew happily climbed aboard as the starship's first female captain. She's a natural space case. "I can't work a computer and I wouldn't know what to do with a fax machine," says Mulgrew, 39, "but I have the kind of brain that speaks fluent science fiction. I just have to learn phrases like 'evasive pattern Delta four' and 'ready the tri-cobalt devices.'" Though no one has asked her, Mulgrew would boldly go where Enterprise captain Patrick Stewart has gone before. "I was transported to a state of such happiness when I walked on the set," she says. "I wouldn't even mind going bald for this part."

CHARACTER DESCRIPTIONS

CAPTAIN KATHRYN JANEWAY

Kathryn Janeway is a Starfleet Captain who leads the combined teams of Starfleet and Maquis personnel. She is a tough Captain, who is not afraid to take chances. While not the only female Captain in Starfleet, her intelligence, thoughtfulness, dedication and diplomacy have earned her respect and recognition as one of the best Starfleet Captains -- male or female.

LIEUTENANT TOM PARIS

Tom Paris comes from a proud family of Starfleet legends. When the pressures of living up to the family name result in tragedy, Paris turned to the Maquis for fulfillment as a fighter pilot. This endeavor ended in tragedy with Paris captured by the Federation as a renegade. Taken from prison and given a second chance by Captain Janeway, Paris boards the Starship U.S.S. Voyager determined to prove his worth to the Captain and himself.

CHAKOTAY

This fearless Captain of the Maquis ship agrees to become First Officer of the Starship U.S.S. Voyager when his crew joins forces with the Federation. A Native American who attended Starfleet Academy and became a Lieutenant Commander, Chakotay resigned his position to join the Maquis, a group of freedom fighters. When he is reunited with the Federation aboard the Starship U.S.S. Voyager, he quickly wins the respect of even the most die-hard Starfleet veterans.

TUVOK

Tuvok, a Vulcan male, is the Starfleet Tactical/Security Officer for the Starship U.S.S. Voyager. His fit and active regimen and his ability to use his physical skills in battle inspire the Voyager crew, while his Vulcan equanimity and calm demeanor make him a valued peace keeper on the ship. Tuvok is one of the most respected members of the crew, with his powerful combination of wisdom, experience and vitality.

HARRY KIM

Harry Kim is fresh out of the Starfleet Academy when he is made the Operations/Communication Officer of the Starship U.S.S. Voyager. Though he enjoyed a stellar academic career and welcomes the challenges and adventures of space exploration, Harry is nervous about living up to his own expectations. Being lost so far from home is hardest on Harry, who has grown up under the loving shelter of his parents.

B'ELANNA TORRES

B'Elanna, a beautiful half-Klingon female, is the ship's Chief Engineer. A former student at Starfleet Academy, B'Elanna quit and joined the Maquis. She is tough, knowledgeable and independent, but her mixed heritage has manifested itself in a state of confusion and denial. Now that B'Elanna is unable to release her frustrations through fighting the Cardassians, she must learn to accept herself and her conflicting heritage.

NEELIX

From a galaxy never explored before, Neelix is a male alien, unlike any ever encountered in the Star Trek universe. On the Starship U.S.S. Voyager, he serves as guide, cook and all-around handyman. Often times, he designates himself the commentator on the human condition. Neelix is a charming yet scraggly scavenger with wit and instincts that have enabled him to survive in this dangerous part of space.

KES

Kes is a female alien from the Ocampa species, a type of alien never before seen in the Star Trek universe. She is the delicate, beautiful, young lover of Neelix, and although she appears as a 28 year-old in human years, Kes is actually a one-year-old Ocampa (a species with a life span of only nine years). Kes adores Neelix and helps him with the cooking aboard the Starship U.S.S. Voyager, but she much prefers her time exploring the Starship and making new friends.

DOC ZIMMERMAN

Doc is a holographic figure -- an emergency medical program devised by Starfleet. When the ship's doctor is killed, Doc Zimmerman becomes the resident physician aboard the Starship U.S.S. Voyager. He is programmed with up-to-date medical knowledge and is capable of treating any disease or injury.
